(54) ABLATION CATHETER AND
ABLATION APPARATUS

(57) The present invention relates to an ablation catheter for the ablation of tissues comprising:- a telescopic tubular body 4 in turn comprising an external tubular body 4a and an internal tubular body 4b concentric with each other, and a rod-like guiding element 5 at least partly housed in the internal tubular body with at least one free end 5a protruding from the internal tubular body in correspondence with a distal end of the telescopic body; - a positioning head and an ablation head 3 in correspondence with the distal end of the telescopic body, the positioning head being situated in the proximity of the free end 5a of the rod-like guide, and the ablation head in the proximity of the positioning head, in a remote position with respect to the free end; - a control handpiece at a proximal end of the telescopic body coupled with the guiding element, the ablation head, the positioning head and the telescopic tubular body; wherein the ablation head comprises at least two ablation elements or petals 3a that can be moved from a rest position in which they are housed in the external tubular body and an operating position in which they protrude from the external tubular body like a petal; wherein each of the ablation elements or petals comprises: - a continuous ablation electrode which extends without interruption over a circumferential peripheral portion of each petal, substantially along an arc of circumference having a longitudinal axis of the rod-like guiding element as its centre; - two side portions 3c of the petal, each connected to an end of the ablation electrode 3b, in correspondence with a curved section, the side portions and the ablation electrode being integral with each other, formed by means of the same folded metallic conductor, - each ablation petal being separate and distinct from another ablation petal of the ablation head, - all the ablation petals of the ablation head being separately connected to a distinct electric energy generator to cause a radiofrequency ablation in a powered ablation electrode condition.

(54) SECURITY DOCUMENT AND METHOD OF MANUFACTURING

(57) Present invention relates to security document comprising image area repeating image pattern in image area of mutually spaced image elements at mutual distance D and a layer of plastics material overlying the image area and an array of lenses in the plastics material. The lenses are spaced at mutual distance L which maybe equal to D or which may differ from D, the array of lenses overlying only a part of image area surface and are formed in the plastics material within image contour. Within the contour an image may be observed such as Moiré magnification or Moiré effect of light and dark stripes. The lenses may be formed for instance by laser ablation or by imprinting.
