(57) There is represented working method of engine having active chamber, which provides at least one movable piston 2 installation in a cylinder 1 by dividing it into an active chamber CA and an expansion chamber CD, and in which: compressed air contained in a tank 12 directly feeds the intake of the engine cylinder 1; included active chamber CA is filled at a constant admission pressure at each engine revolution, said admission pressure decreasing as the pressure in the tank decreases; the volume of the included active chamber CA increases progressively as the pressure in the tank 12, volume of included therein active chamber CA is gradually increased respectively pressure decreasing in the tank. The method also provides not only to open inlet hole and channel 7, opened essentially at the top dead center of the stroke of the piston, but also the modification of the duration and/or the angular sector of the admission, in addition to the opening passage section; and the volume of the included active chamber CA is dimensioned for maximum storage pressure, and is then progressively increased, resulting in a self-pressure regulating engine.
